

My husband & I are sr. citizens, and I am a practicing attorney. My husband & I fully support New Jersey's "do not call" law. Before we signed up for the program, we had people calling as late as 9 or 10 p.m., but usually during our dinner hour, with pesky, persistent solicitations. Now, we rarely get such calls. When we do, we merely advise we're registered with the "do not call" system, and the callers back off immediately. It should be every citizens' right to block such intrusive violations of privacy. Our home is our sanctuary and our domain, and cannot be entered by government officials or anyone else without a Court-issued warrant or an invitation. Our telephone is part of our home, and we subscribe AND PAY FOR IT for OUR convenience, not that of telemarketers. It's bad enough we're assaulted over the airwaves, via junkmail and seemingly endless print ads; leaves our telephones alone!
